

Race Resume Basics

Your race resume is a snapshot of who you are as a bike racer. It is a tool that you will continually use throughout your career and as such is an important document that you should always keep current with the best information available. Whether you are seeking to upgrade to the next category, solicit sponsors, or interview for a new team, your race resume will be one of the best ways to show people what you have done as a cyclist. Putting your resume together does not have to be difficult but it must be accurate, concise, and clearly convey several important pieces of information.

Rider Information (Who You Are)

- Full name
- Address
- Telephone number
- Email address
- USA Cycling License Number and UCI Code (if applicable)
- Current Racing Category.

Purpose (What You are Seeking and/or Using the Resume to Accomplish)

- Upgrading from one category to the next
- Seeking to ride for a team
- Requesting Sponsorship

Accomplishments (What you have achieved)

- Name of each event you have raced
- Date(s) of the event
- Your race category at the time of the event
- The size of the field during the event
- Distance of the race
- Your placing
- USA Cycling points that you earned (this is mostly applicable to upgrades).

References (Contact information for people who will vouch for you as a racer)

- Coaches
- Team Directors
- Event Organizers
- Sponsors
- Fellow Riders and Past Teammates

Before listing anyone as a reference, be sure you ask for their permission and don't assume they will be ok with putting their name down on your resume. In addition, tell them why you want their support and give them an idea of who you are talking too so they will not be surprised if that person calls them. Often, this heads up can allow them do a better job of helping you.

Alan Martin is a USA Cycling Level I Coach, Certified Skill Instructor, and owner of Central Ohio Velosport, LLC (www.cohvelosport.com) a bicycle coaching business that trains cyclists to become better riders and competitors. For questions or input he can be contacted at centralohvelo@gmail.com.